DENTIST HALL'S TRAGIC WAY OF COLLECTING A DEBT.

He Tries to Shoot Editor Dunlap at His Office Door with a Rusty Little Pistol.

BEATEN IN A DARK HALL.

Whiskey, Bullets and a Broken Head for a Matter of Four Dollars for Filling a Lady's Teeth.

Four dollars is not popularly supposed to be an adequate cause for the taking of human life, but that is the motive ascribed to an attempt on the life of Mr. A. P. Dunlap at the close of his day's business on Friday evening. The event was brief, but stirring. It stirred up Mr. Dunlap so thoroughly that he was still shaky yesterday when I called to ask what stepsihe intended to take against his would be assassin

Mr. Dunlap is a little gray old gentleman who has an office in the third or top floor of the antiquated building at No. 1,762 Broadway, just across the way from the Coleman House. He is editor of the Stage News, is agent for several dramatic properties, and transacts business for a number of theatrical people. Colonel Millikon, who is in the same line of business, occupies adjoining offices.

About six o'clock on Friday evening Mr. Dunlap was sitting in his office with a couple of old friends talking when a man past the prime of life and several degrees removed from sobriety opened the door and loudly began to demand a settlement of "that claim."

Mr. Dunlap stepped to the door to spaak to the man, but before he had spoken a dozen words there was a sharp report and a bullet whizzed past the editor's head.

IT WAS A HARMLESS SHOT. Fortunately the hallway and office were but dimly lighted, and the bullet sped by him and was buried in the wall behind.

The visitor was about to repeat the shot when Dunlap, who is an old soldier, sprang forward and grasped the revolver just in time to catch the descending hammer on the side of his thumb, cutting a gash in it and making a black and blue spot. There was a brief scrimmage, and the pistol was wrested from the hand of its reckless

After thinking the matter over a moment the latter concluded that he had urged his claim sufficiently strong for one evening, and staggered down the stairs, and Mr. Dunlap returned to his office.

"That is a most extraordinary attack." he said.

"That man is A. P. Hall, a dentist and a chorus singer in an opera troupe. He filled some teeth for a lady client of mine who is also a singer and presented a bill for $12. She gave me $8 for him, which I paid over to him. She said she would not give him another cent, as the fillings came out and the work was worse than worthless. He has been pestering her for some time for that $4, and, to tell the truth, I was going to try and persuade her to make good his caim, and now he gots full and comes up here and tries to kill me. Suppose I had been alone and he had killed me."

been alone and he had killed me!

ATTER THE DENTIET.

Mr. Dunlap's friends advised him to have the belligerent dentist arrested, and he declared that he should do so as soon as he get back from his suburban home in the morning.

When he reached his office restarday morning he found a weeping woman, aged with grief and care, awaiting him. She said she was the wife of Dr. Hall, and that he had come home the night before very drunk and very much frightened and told her what had happened, and she begged Mr. Dunlop not to take proceedings against him.

"The disgrace of this thing will kill me, I know it will" whe soubsed. "I have suffered very much from this man, and I can assure you that he will never trouble you again."

"Well," Mr. Duniap said kindly, "go home, I won't do anything about it."

He shock hands with the woman and bowed her out.

"Did you notice the arms of that woman?" he said to his pretty stenographer. "She is as thin as a match." "Yes," said the other, "she looks as if trouble had aged her."

DOCTORS AT LOGGERHEADS.

DERGEN COUNTY PHYSICIANS AT ODDS WITH DR. BICHTER OVER A DIPLOMA.

For a few days it has been rumored in Caristadt, N. J., that Dr. A. Richter, a well known rasident of that place, has been called upon by the State Board of Medical Examiners to produce the diploma by virtue of which he has practiced medicine in Bergen county for the past twenty years As was exclusively announced in the HEBALD at the time, an attempt was made several months ago to prove that Dr. Richter was not a legally qualified physician. Knowing that he claims to be a graduate of Leipzig University, certain members of the the local medical society wrote to the secretary of the university and were duly informed by him that no medical diploma had been granted by the university to any man bearing the name of A. Richter.

Armed with this document a duly appointed committee of physicians went before the Grand Jury at Hackensack and argued that there were ample geomes for Dr. Richter's indictment.

THE STAIR MAY EXPERIENCE.

The Grand Jury took no action on the matter and it was the general opinion that on merely documentary evidence an indictment would never be round. The committee, however, laid the case next before the State Board of Medical Examiners and, if this Board fails to take decisive action, the whole matter will be brought before the State Medical Society.

I asked Dr. Richter last night if he had heard from the State Board and he replied that he had not.

"I have a diploma from Leitzig University" be physician. Knowing that he claims to be a gradu-

"I have a diploms from Leipzig University," he continued, "and no lastter what the secretary of the university may say my diploma is ample proof that I am a regularly qualified physician. I have not seen the secretary's letter and I do not understand why he should say that no diploma has been granted to me," granted to me."

A PRANE EXPLANATION.

I then asked the doctor if there was any truth in an extraordinary bit of gossip about him to the effect that he had abandoned his wife in Germany and that she was coming over here in order to prove charges against him. He laughed heartily at the question and said that the story was a concocion of his enemies. ion of his ensures.

"I have lived here now for twenty years," he continued, "and my neighbors know all about me and my home life. There is, of course, not a word of truth in the story that I have left a wife in of truth in the etery that I have left a wife in Germany."

I then asked the Doctor if it was true that two of his patients had died recently of pucumonia. He replied that it was, and that one of the patients had been attended by a physician from New York. "No physician can keep life in a patient who is sick unto death," he continued, "and I claim that my large professional practice is a good proof of the esteem in which I am held by my patients."

In conclusion it may be said that the Poctor has many friends in Bargen county and is ready at any moment to produce a diploma, which, he alleges, was granted to him by the University of Leipzig.

HER DOCTOR GOT THE MAJOR PART.

Eliza A. Samanos, who died on November 14 last, is appointed executor. The contestants, in their objections to the probate of the will, allege that it was not freely and voluntarily executed by the testatrix and that it was procured by fraud and undue induence on the part of the Doctor.

Several relatives of the deceased cannot be found, and as they have not been heard of in years are supposed to be dead. They are Eliza Johnson and Joel Chapman, a niece and nephew. Miss Johnson about fourteen years ago left home and has not been heard of since.

The nephew, Chapman, left this city nearly forty years ago and has never returned. He was last heard from in 1870, in Melbourne, Australia.

CHARGES AGAINST DIRE TORS OF THE WEST VIRGINIA CENTRAL ROAD,

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.] PARRELEBURG, Jan. 31, 1891.—The West Virginia Central Railroad stockholders at their meeting, just held at Piedmont, in this State, had lively times, and serious charges were made against the present management, which consists principally of James G. Blaine, Stephen B. Elkins, Benry G. Davis, Senator Gorman and ex-Senator Bayard.

The trouble arose over a recent decision allowing cumulative voting. The minority stockholders supported for the new directory Irwin W. Cross, supported for the new directory Irwin W. Cross, and the 9,500 shares held by the Shaus were plied up in votes for him. But as Cross was not on good terms with the other directors they barred him out, claiming that a special act of the Legislature had nullified the decision of the courts and that cumulative voting was not allowable.

This started the storm, and Cross arcse and presented a protest from the smaller sharsholders, charging that mismanagoment was rendering worth-less the property; that private enterprise is being furthered by the use of the company's property, and that the directors keep all their movements secret.

and that the directors seep all their movements seerest.

It was further charged that the place of meeting has been changed from Baltimore to Piedmont in order to prevent many stockholders from being present; that to prevent information about the road from spreading the number of directors has been reduced from ten to seven; that Stephen B. Elkins was appointed upon a committee of inquiry into the ulfairs of the company when he was the principal one interested in covering up transactions, and that the investigation was finally dropped by siroping from the committee its warmest supporter; that the directory are as individuals interested in every contract they make, that if the amailer stockholders did not look after their interests now they would soon have none to look after.

their interest was immediately laid on the table as "faire and mallicious." The directory then gave to the president absolute power as to the disposal of the common stock and in operating the company's mines. Additional trouble is expected. No dividend was declared.

Boston.

Mr. Patch, who is chairman of the committee from the exchange which had the matter in charge, said:—"We now shall get $40 off per car from the rates we formerly paid. This will make a total saving per year to the Boston peach dealers of between $10,000 and $15,000."

Instantly Killed by the Engine of an Empty Train.

HE BECAME CONFUSED.

When His Body Was Picked up a Cigar Box, Nail Keg and Soap Box Served as Coffins.

In the tower of the yard of the elevated road at 145th street and Ninth avenue there lay yesterday afternoon the body of Michael Byrnes, a carpenter. thirty-two years of age.

The poor fellow's corpse had been shockingly mutilated, and the fragments were contained in a cigar box, a nail keg and a soap box, which were placed on the west side of the tower, near a window, through which morbidly curious persons were constantly peering.

The accident which resulted in the death of young Byrnes occurred shortly before noon, before the eyes of a number of employes of the "L' road. Byrnes had been employed by the "L" road for some years. At the time when he met his death he was at work with five other men in repairing the track at a point nearly midway between 143d and 144th sts.

The work consisted principally in laying side rails and ties. The latter were being put in posi-tion over the girders and under the rails. The men had been at work all the morning and had been kept busy in keeping out of the way of the trains, which were passing by them on both the uptown and the downtown tracks. HOW IT HAPPENED.

Yesterday was pay day with the men employed by the road and all hands were in a particularly good humor. Byrnes himself, always a good natured fellow, was particularly jolly and gayly ban. | handing them in, "Cable to the Henand, European tered his fellow workmen.

Within half an hour of noon the carpenters were busily engaged in getting the ties in place when a train was seen approaching them on the downtown track. All the men working on that side of the elevated structure drew back and stood between the track and the one next to it. point mentioned there are three tracks, and from the centre of the three there is a switch running from the track to the yard on the east side of the station at 145th street.

While his fellows retreated to the space between the downtown track and the middle track, Hyrnes slipped still further back and stood between the ralls of the centre frack. At that very moment there was a train coming down that track under moderate headway from 155th street, for the purpose of being yarded at the 145th street yard.

BYINES' AWPUL PEATE.

When Byrnes stepped back cut of the way of the downtown train another train had just passed on the uptown side and had stopped at the station at 145th street. Between the noise of the train at the station and the one passing on the downtown track the man evidently became confused and stepped on the middle track without hearing or seeing the empty train coming down from 155th street.

The angineer and fireman of the train saw the carpenters as they approached them, but paid no particular attention to them, taking it for granted that the road's employes there enough to get out of the way of passing trains.

Even when Byrnes lingered on the track, although the train was very near him, the engineer felt no uncessiness. Track employes have a way of apparently not noticing approaching trains and of stepping out of the way at the last moment.

Nearer and nearer approached the engine, and still Byrnes did not site from his dangerous position. Then, all too late, the engineer saw the darger and tried to stop his engine. Byrnes' fellow workmen, too, saw that the man was about to be run down and called to him frantically to get out of the way.

CUT TO FIECES.

But it was all in vain. That great mass of iron reached the man, and remoreslessly hurling him upon the rails it crushed over him, dismembering his body in a borrible mannar. The empty train was stopped before the second car had passed over the unfortunate man. Mr. McGowan, who has charge of the yard tower, saw the accident and collected the body, which was cut into a score of pieces.

A THIRD AVENUE TRAIN CRASHES INTO AN ASH CAR AT 126TH STREET. A collision occurred on the Third avenue ele vated railroad at a quarter past eleven yesterday morning at 125th street. No one was injured, A south bound South ferry train left 123th street station at 11:15, and was running full speed when t crashed into the rear end of a train composed of two trucks loaded with ushes. The engine of the passenger train was No. 25, and was driven by Samuel E. Tucker, and the ash cars were drawn by Engine No. 153. This accident is similar to that of three weeks ago to-day, when a locomotive was thrown to the street. The ash train had been collecting garbage and had worked its way up town as far as 195th street. It was going north on the south bound track. Having to make way for south bound train No. 25 it ran on the switch at 126th street. For some reason the last ash car was left standing on the down track. the down track.

The passenger train was running at a rate of about ten miles an hour and crashed into the car with a loud noise. The engineers and fremen of both trains stuck to their posts. The forward platform of the passenger engine was smashed out of shape, as also was that of the rear ash car.

The first passenger coach of the train was devailed, and swayed in such manner that persons on the sidewalk, whose attention had been attracted by the noise, thought that it would fall to the sidewalk.

To add to the general consternation the cylinder head of the passenger engine biew out, and the scene of the wreck was enveloped in steam. Several men who were standing by the side of the locomotive were slightly scalded, but their injuries were not serious.

The passengers on the train were panic stricken and jumped to the track and walked to 125th street station, and one woman fainted and was taken to a neighboring drug store and later taken home.

TRAFFIC HOCKED.

station, and one woman named and was taken to a neighboring drug store and later taken home.

Traffic was blocked for about three-quarters of an hour and passengers had to mount the south bound platform of the 125th street station, where trains were started again as soon as they arrived.

No reason is given for the accelent and the railroad authorities refused to speak. An official at 129th street station said that the passenger train was two minutes late and that, in his opinion, Engineer Tucker miscalculated the speed of his train and ran into the ash train, which had not time to run fully on to the centre track. The signal, which works automatically, was against the passenger train, and there will be an official inquiry into the matter.

The guard rail of the down track was torn up for some distance, as also was the flooring which is used along the road where there are switches.

A large portion of the contents of the smashed ash car were deposited on Third avenue below.
